Copyright and Trademark Law

The authors of the website aim to regard the copyrights of used sound documents and texts in all publications or to resort to license-free graphics, sound documents and texts. All trademarks mentioned on the website and possibly protected by a third party solely underlie the regulations of the respectively valid mark right and the property right of the respectively registered proprietor. The conclusion that a trade mark is not protected by rights of a third party, is not to be drawn from the fact of its mere mention.

The copyright of published objects made by the authors themselves remains solely with the authors of the webpages. Any reproduction or use of such graphics, designs, sound documents or texts in other electronic or printed publications without the expressed written consent of the respective author is prohibited.

Works of third parties are marked as such. The reproduction, adaptation, spreading and any sort of use outside the borders of copyright law require the expressed written consent of the respective author.

References and links

Concerning direct or indirect references from foreign websites («hyperlinks»), that are out of the sphere of responsibility of “Scramblers”, a liability is solely in force, if “Scramblers” has positive knowledge of the contents and if it has the technical means and it is reasonable to prevent the use in case of unlawful contents. “Scramblers” hereby expressly declares that by the time of the link subsidence no illegal contents were recognizable on the linked websites. “Scramblers” has no influence whatsoever on the current and future composition, the contents or the authorship of the linked sites. Therefore “Scramblers” hereby expressly distances itself from all contents of all linked sites which were changed after the link subsidence.

This declaration is valid for all links and references, as well as foreign entries in guest books arranged by “Scramblers” within this very website. Solely the provider of the website which was referred to is liable for illegal, inaccurate or incomplete contents and especially damages, which result from the use or disuse of information provided in such a way.

Non-liability / indemnification clause

“Scramblers” takes no guarantee for the being up-to-date, the correctness, completeness or quality of provided information. Liability claims against “Scramblers” which refer to damages of material or immaterial nature that were inflicted by the use or disuse of provided information, as well as the use of deficient and incomplete information are basically excluded, as far as there is no demonstrable intentional or grossly negligent conduct by “Scramblers”.

Lawfulness of the non-liability / indemnification clause

The indemnification clause / non liability is part of online service from which this very page was referred to. As far as parts or single formulations of this text are not or not any longer compatible with the current or actual laws or don't completely comply with them, the remaining parts of the document stay untouched by that fact concerning their content and their validity.
